Also in your download

- START HERE: which file to open first
- US Letter and A4 versions of this kit, each in color and ink-saver (white backgrounds, links to color in)
- Slides to project (16:9 PDF, 20 slides)
- Bonus story: More Talk, Less Tap, a 32-page read-aloud PDF

Quick start

1. Print and cut the chain-link strips (pages 6–9) and one set of prompt cards. About 20 minutes, once; a paper trimmer helps. For more than 16 children, print the link pages twice.
2. Put up the poster low, at children’s eye level, and tape the first link above it. Each new strip loops through the last link; a grown-up tapes the ends. Hang the chain along the wall as it grows.
3. Read the teacher script once (page 4).
4. Play one round at circle time. Count the chain together.

No time to cut? Project the slides and draw the chain on the board, one link per turn. You can play today.

How the game works

Every time a child asks, comments, adds one idea or shows they listened, a link goes on the class chain. Everyone builds one chain together. There are no winners, no points and no links taken away.

ASK a question to a friend

COMMENT something back to a friend

ADD ONE more idea to what a friend said

LISTEN and show you heard, your way

A first week with the Add-One Chain

Mon

Read the bonus story. Meet the four links.

Tue

Your first round with the teacher script.

Wed

Pass the Talking Star (variation 1).

Thu

Add-One Story Chain (variation 2).

Fri

Count the chain, sign the certificate, send the family page home.

Before you start

Printing

- Print at 100% / actual size so the cards line up. Choose US Letter or A4 to match your paper.
- Cards: white cardstock (about 65–110 lb / 176–300 gsm) lasts longest. Chain links loop best on plain paper or light cardstock.
- Laminate the prompt cards if you will play all year, then round the corners. Print fresh links as the chain grows.
- Save ink: print the script, trackers and family pages in grayscale. Only the links and cards need color.
- Print shop: ask for “single-sided, full color, cardstock, no scaling”. Cut on the dashed lines.
- Store each card set in its own envelope or zip bag, labeled with its color.

Ages and groups

- Ages 3–4: start with COMMENT and LISTEN only. Rounds of 3–5 minutes. You read the cards aloud.
- Ages 5–7: use all four links and the prompt cards. Rounds of 8–10 minutes.
- Works for a whole class in a circle, a small group of 4–6, or pairs.
- The picture on every card carries its meaning, so pre-readers can play too.

Every way of talking counts

- Spoken words, signing, pointing, a picture card, a communication device, a nod or a thumbs-up all earn a link.
- Children may take their turn in the language they know best.
- “Pass” is always OK. A child who passes can still earn a LISTEN link.
- Count the class chain, never individual children. Links are never taken away.

Safety

- An adult leads and supervises every round.
- A grown-up does the taping. Keep tape, paper scraps and anything small enough to fit through a toilet-paper tube (about 1.25 in / 3.2 cm) away from children under 3.
- The chain is a wall display: hang it high along the wall, never around anyone’s neck or across a walkway.
- Use painter’s tape or large hook-and-loop dots on the wall. Check dots before each play. Keep pushpins, staples and small magnets out of reach.
- For the Talking Star, use the paper star in this kit or a soft toy. For ball games, roll a soft, large ball along the floor.
- No balloons for children under 8.

This kit is a set of general classroom play ideas. It is not a program, assessment or screening tool, and it is not professional advice.

Why it works

Children get better at conversation by having lots of conversations: asking, answering, adding on and listening, with grown-ups and friends who wait for them. The chain makes each of those turns visible, so the whole class can see them and cheer. For the youngest, saying something back comes before asking a friend a question, so start there.

Three talk lines for any time

“Tell me more.”

“What happened next?”

“I wonder...”

Most classes love 2–3 of the six variations. Keep your favorites and skip the rest.

What you need

Printed chain-link strips (pages 6–9)

One set of prompt and topic cards

The wall poster, clear tape and painter’s tape

A basket, and the paper Talking Star or a soft toy

Optional: strips cut from scrap paper instead of printed ones, a cloth bag for Mystery Bag Talk, a soft ball for Comment Catch.

Teacher script: your first round

About 10 minutes (3–5 for ages 3–4, page 3) · whole group · say the words in bold quotes; do the gray notes

Gather 1 min

Children sit in a circle. The poster is up, the links and tape are in a basket, and the Talking Star is in your hand.

“Today we are going to make something by taking turns to talk. It is called the Add-One Chain!”

Meet the links 2 min

Hold up one link at a time.

“Blue means ask: you ask a friend a question. Yellow means comment: you say something back. Green means add one: you add one more idea. Purple means listen: you show you heard your friend.”

Show one turn 1 min

Play a turn with a child or another adult so everyone sees it first.

“What did you play today?” (Child answers.) “Me too! I love the sand table.” (Loop on a yellow link.) “My comment made our chain grow!”

Play the round 5 min

Draw a topic card and pass the star. After each turn, the child loops on a link and you tape it.

“Whoever holds the star takes a turn. Everyone else listens, their own way. You can ask, comment, add one, or say pass.”

Count and celebrate 1 min

Count the links together. Write the length on the tracker.

“Let’s count our chain: one, two, three... Our chain is ___ links long! We made that together, one turn at a time.”

If this happens...

Everyone talks at once

“Chain tangle! One voice at a time. Who has the star?” Hold up the tangle sign.

One child talks a lot

“Great idea! Hold it for the next round. Let’s hear from someone who hasn’t had a turn.”

A child needs to move

Let them stand or rock nearby. A moving body can still listen.

A child does not want a turn

“Pass is OK. You can point, nod or show me. Want to earn a listen link?”

The chain is short today

“Every link counts. We will add more tomorrow.”

The links run out

Print more, or add tally marks on the board.

Next time, try a variation from pages 18–19. The bonus story More Talk, Less Tap is a fun way to start on day one.

Name tags

✂ Cut on the dashed lines. Write one child's name on each tag and use them on the whose-turn mat (next page). Print this page once for every 12 children. Grown-up keeps the pieces.

name	name

No time to cut?

Write names straight into the Ready for a turn column of the whose-turn mat and tick each one after a turn, or use the weekly tracker (page 12).

Whose turn?

Stick every name tag in Ready for a turn. After a child's turn, they move their own name across. When every name has moved, the round is done: move them all back and start again.

 Ready for a turn

Everyone starts here.

 Had a turn

Move your name here after your turn.

Tip: laminate this page and use hook-and-loop dots or painter's tape on the backs of the name tags. Check dots before each play. A child who passes still moves across: listening is a turn too. The mat holds 8 names, so use one per small group, or overlap the name tags for a whole class.

Add-One Chain turn tracker

Week of _____ · Color a square when a child adds that kind of link. Use it to make sure everyone gets a turn, never to rank or compare children. Keep it in your folder, not on the wall. Print two for a bigger class.

Circle-time variations

Six more ways to grow the chain. Each one works with the same links, cards and rules, needs nothing to buy, and makes no mess.

Pass the Talking Star

Whole group · From 36 months · 5–10 min · Prep: none · You need: Talking Star, one topic card

1. Read the topic card aloud.
2. Pass the star around the circle. Whoever holds it may ask, comment, add one or pass.
3. Add a link after every turn and count the chain at the end.

2-minute version, no setup: Skip the topic card. Ask one question and pass the star to three children. One link each.

Make it easier: Everyone finishes the same starter: “I like...”

Make it harder: Each turn connects to the friend before: “Add one to what Maya said.”

Add-One Story Chain

Whole group · From 48 months · 10 min · Prep: none · You need: Green links (for a whole class, print page 8 twice)

1. Start a silly story: “Once there was a dog who wanted to...”
2. Each child adds one thing to the story, and a green link goes on the chain.
3. At the end, retell the whole story together, one link at a time.

2-minute version, no setup: Say one story starter. Three children add one word each, then say the whole line together.

Make it easier: Add just one word each: “a big... red... bus”.

Make it harder: Add a problem, then ask the circle how to fix it.

Ask Me One More

Pairs · From 48 months · 5 min · Prep: none · You need: Nothing at all

1. One partner shares something: “I have a cat.”
2. The other listens, then asks one more question: “What is its name?”
3. Swap. Each pair adds a blue link to the class chain.

2-minute version, no setup: One pair shows the class: one shares, one asks one more question. Everyone cheers their way: clap, wave or a silent cheer.

Make it easier: Hand the asker an ASK card to read or point to.

Make it harder: Try for three questions in a row on the same topic.

Comment Catch

Small group · From 42 months · 5 min · Prep: find a soft ball · You need: A large soft ball

1. Sit in a small circle. One child shares a sentence about the topic.
2. Roll the ball along the floor to a friend.
3. The catcher makes a comment about what they heard, then shares their own sentence and rolls on.

2-minute version, no setup: No ball: point to a friend instead of rolling. Two or three turns.

Make it easier: Keep a COMMENT card in the middle to point to.

Make it harder: The catcher starts with the sharer's name: "Leo, that is funny!"

Listening Chain

Whole group · From 42 months · 5 min · Prep: none · You need: Purple links (for a whole class, print page 9 twice)

1. A child shares one thing about their day.
2. The next child says back one thing they heard, then shares their own.
3. Every say-back earns a purple link. A calm way to end a busy day.

2-minute version, no setup: You share one thing about your day. Two children say back what they heard.

Make it easier: The grown-up says it back first, then invites a child to try.

Make it harder: Say back two things you heard.

Mystery Bag Talk

Small group · From 36 months · 10 min · Prep: 1 min to fill the bag · You need: A cloth bag and one classroom object

1. Hide one object in the bag. Pick something too big to fit through a toilet-paper tube.
2. Children ask questions to guess it: "Is it soft?" Each question adds a blue link.
3. Reveal it, then everyone comments or adds one idea about it.

2-minute version, no setup: No bag: hold one classroom object behind your back and take three guesses.

Make it easier: Answer with a yes or no, and let children feel the bag.

Make it harder: The child who guesses hides the next object and answers the questions.

Keep it a celebration. Count the class chain, not individual turns. No winners, no prizes, and no child is made to talk before they are ready.

Play the Add-One Chain at home

Dear families,

This week our class played the Add-One Chain, a talk game where every question, comment and idea adds a link to our class paper chain. Our chain grew to _____ links! Here is how to play at home. You need no screens and nothing special.

How to play (5 minutes)

1. Pick a moment: dinner, the car, bath time or a walk.
2. Pick a topic: food, animals, today, a silly “what if”.
3. Take turns: ask a question, say something back, or add one more idea.
4. Build: every turn adds a link. Tape strips of scrap paper into a chain, or color a link on the sheet we sent home.
5. Count your chain together at the end.

Tips for grown-ups

- Pause and wait. Count to five in your head after you ask.
- Say what you see. “You’re smiling! Is that a funny idea?”
- Repeat and add one word. “A dog!” “A big dog!”
- Follow their lead. Talk about what your child already loves.
- Every way counts. Pointing, signing, gestures and a tap on a talking device are turns too. A talking device is a child’s voice, not screen time.
- Use your home language. Talk, sing and read in the language you know best.

Safety: an adult plays along and does the taping. Keep tape and paper scraps away from babies and toddlers. Hang the chain up; it is never worn.

What did you play?

Bonus: the read-aloud story

More Talk, Less Tap is a 32-page picture-book story that comes free with this kit. Room 5 makes an Add-One Chain, one question, joke and idea at a time, until everybody talks at once and... RIIIP! Quiet Sam has the idea that saves the day: take turns.

One difference: in the story, yellow links are for jokes and laughs. In the game, yellow means comment, saying something back to a friend. Laughing at a friend's joke still counts! And the “tap” in the title? It is the rain on the window and Bubbles the fish. A tap on a talking device is talk, and it always earns a link.

File: Add-One-Chain-Story-Read-Aloud.pdf (square pages).
Project it for the group, or print it one or two pages per sheet.

Before

- Show the cover. “What do you think an Add-One Chain is?”
- Point to the four colors of links. Can anyone guess what each one means?

During

- Invite everyone to join in on “LOOP!” and “On it goes!”, loud or whisper-quiet.
- Pause at the rip. “Uh-oh. What should Room 5 do?”
- Give Sam’s quiet idea a moment of wait time.

After

- “Which link would you add first?”
- Play your first Add-One Chain round (teacher script, page 4).
- The story’s back pages have more talk starters and games.
